Certificate course on Gender Equality

This certificate course is designed to prompt an exploration of common behaviors and attitudes towards gender differences. It will present facts and figures about the situation of women and men in our society today – and references from key documents that highlight policies formulated to address gender concerns. Recent events have shown that if governments are serious about achieving the Sustainable Development Goals, SDG's, it is essential that gender be taken into account for all the goals. Gender equality in the SDG's touches almost exclusively on the area of education, and research does show the importance of equality in this area, but this is not sufficient. This e-learning certificate course will empower the participants with tools and sector-specific guidelines for gender mainstreaming in their various institutions and development planning. It will further improve the abilities of students to reduce gender inequalities in their various homes, and communities.
